Mr. Ruff, English Professor, Sees Aunt After Twenty Years

"I find that teaching girls is an interesting change," said Mr. Samuel O. Ruff, recent addition to the faculty, and veteran of three years' active duty overseas with the Army Air Corps.

Mr. Ruff had not seen his aunt, who is a buyer for the dining hall at the college, since 1923, so it was a happy reunion for them when he came to Mary Washington as a member of the faculty.

Mr. Ruff, a minister's son, was born in Calaway, Virginia, though any one of several Virginia and North Carolina towns may be called his home, as he has travelled extensively. He attended Hampden-Sidney College and later received his M. A. degree from the University of Virginia. Before going into the service, Mr. Ruff taught at Tulane University in New Orleans, Louisiana.

His experiences overseas left him with a lasting impression, particularly the invasion of Sicily which he describes as "the most dramatic design I have ever seen." While overseas, Mr. Ruff was in the 79th Fighter Group which participated in the North African campaigns from Egypt to Italy, and later he served in France, Belgium, Austria and Germany. While in Southern France, Mr.

Ruff, then a captain, occupied the town of Valence where to his surprise, the French served fried chicken and champagne continuously in the library.

Although his future is indefinite, Mr. Ruff is considering taking his Ph.D. at Harvard or Yale and continuing his teaching in the English Department.

Mrs. E. H. Ould Gives Pattern For a Home

Mrs. E. H. Ould, authority on love, courtship and marriage, spoke on "The Latest Thing in Homemaking" in convocation on December 4. She declared that the mops, soap and washing machines would come in time with marriage but pointed out that the four most important areas one has to meet and conquer in this modern age were the development of an attractive personality, a selection of a life's career, development of a wise philosophy for living and a sane attitude towards the other sex.

"Above all," Mrs. Ould stated, "a woman should be a fine, Christian homemaker and a good mother; one who shares her love, appreciation and understanding."

Shells Appear On Dining Tables For 'Peanut Week'

There is only one more shopping day before Peanut Week which will begin Wednesday, December 11 and last till Tuesday, December 17.

Peanut Week has long been a tradition on the MWC campus, and this year will add another week of fun and gifts to its record. There will be peanut shells on the tables in the dining hall Wednesday night. The person getting the nut will be the "shell," and the name in the shell will be the "peanut." The identity of the shell is to remain a secret to the peanut for the week. Co-eds and faculty are in on the fun.

Small remembrances, given "in-cognito," should brighten the lives of many peanuts this week. For gifts suggestions one might use stamps, seals, cards, cigarettes, chewing gum, candy, and items in that ever-lovin' food category.

Tuesday, the 17th, will find "peanuts" and "shells" alike stuffed with food after the Xmas dinner which will mark the end of Peanut Week. The "shell" should leave a present costing about 25 cents for her "peanut" in the dining hall, as designated on the slip of paper in the shells.

Alice Wambersie and her committee are in charge of arrangements for the week.

Student directories, with their bright green backs and addresses of everyone on or around the Mary Washington campus, are now on sale in the College Shoppe for 35 cents. Members of Cap and own, who compiled the directory, began distribution to the rooms of previous subscribers last Thursday.

"Sh-h-h-h"---It's A Mystery Which Will Be Given Dec. 14

"Sh-h-h-h," a spine-tingling, hair-raising murder mystery, will be presented by the Y. W. C. A. Saturday, December 14, at 7:30 in Monroe Auditorium. As an added feature, after the three-act thriller, the Snow Ball, an informal dance will be thrown in the gym. The price of admission of 45 cents includes both of these features and tickets are on sale outside the "C" Shoppe this week.

Suspense and hilarity seem to be the keynotes for the production which is something new in the line of benefits on the hill. A creepy and weird atmosphere pervades the set and the sinister villains are so numerous that it is difficult, indeed, for Yallock Holmes, the detective to snag the culprit.

Gurdine Link, the director, joined with Peggy Hoffman in writing the script. Both girls expressed their anxiety for the villain to be apprehended and given his just deserts in the third act.

Principles of the cast are as follows: Ellen Dyer, Sue Womer, Betty Williams and Betty Lou Shelhorse.

Betsy Kyle is in charge of the Snow Ball, assisted by Betty Caum, Lila Kinsey and Penny Quillan.

Meg Bliven is technical director; Jean Bunting, business manager; Betty Lou Flescher, tickets; Jane Edmonds, programs; Martha Warner, publicity; June Ashton, properties; Anna White, costumes; Jane Cleeland, make-up; Frances Cox, lights; Joan Rekeymeyer, sound; and ushers will be the members of the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet.

Willardites Have New Housemother

Mrs. Hoffman is now housemother of Willard, the freshman dorm. She arrived here last Monday after traveling from St. Petersburg, Fla. Her daughter, Shirley, is a junior here and her son Edward, a veteran, is planning to enter Mary Washington this February.

"I like it here very much and the girls have been lovely," said Mrs. Hoffman, who is fond of young people and interested in their work and pleasures.

Mrs. Jessie E. Hearn, the former housemother, left on Nov. 21 after having received a telephone call that she had been appointed a teacher in Greenville, Miss. Mrs. Hearn rejoined her younger daughter Joy Anna, who is now attending high school there. To express their appreciation for Mrs. Hearn's supervision and guidance, the freshmen presented her with a piece of luggage at a house meeting before her departure.

German Reflects Christmas Motif

The German Club held the first of its colorful dances on Saturday when approximately 230 couples attended the tea dance in Monroe Hall during the afternoon and the formal ball in the Hall of Mirrors in the evening.

Decorations, which reflected a Christmas motif, were in the form of German Club monograms on a white background enlivened by red ribbons, giving a Christmas card effect to the design. Sprays of pine emphasized the effect.

The figure, led by Mary Frances Cheatham, Anna Brauer and their escorts, took the form of a Grand March in which club members and their dates marched in three concentric circles. As the house lights were dimmed, small individual lights concealed in the girls' bouquets of red carnations gave the illusion that the dancers were a part of three large Christmas wreaths.

Music was by "The Townsmen" of Richmond. Officers of the club are Mary Frances Cheatham, president; Anna Brauer, vice president; Anne Washington Lee, secretary; Marjorie Batty, treasurer; and Betsy Robertson, historian.

Hand-made Dolls From Freshman Show Go To Orphanage

"Mama, buy me one of the pretty dolls." Were Mary Washington a kindergarten instead of a college, such might be the cry of any Mary Washington girl, when she goes to see the doll show being presented in the front cross hall of Willard on Tuesday and Wednesday. According to Y. W. C. A., which is in charge of the show, it will be one of the best that has ever been presented.

The dolls, which are to be sent to a Virginia Orphanage for Christmas, will be judged on the originality and appropriateness of their clothing and the quality of the sewing. Judging will take place Tuesday at 5 p. m., with Miss Lillie Turman, Mrs. Earl Insley and Dr. Richard Kirby as judges.

"Y" says there will be plenty of clever dolls this year, as it is entirely up to each group as to the types of dolls and dress they will use.

This show is held annually in order to bring a little of the Christmas cheer to some small girl who has never known what a real Christmas is.

Alpha Phi Speaker

Mrs. Mildred B. Sollenberger, instructor in radio and speech, will present an original Christmas story, "Santa's Magic Christmas Tree," when she appears as guest speaker at the December meeting of Alpha Phi Sigma, to be held at 7 p. m. on December 16 in Monroe auditorium.

Double Meanings Bring Added Laughter To Alpha Psi Omega Comedy Production

True to its usual high standards of stage production, Alpha Psi Omega, campus dramatic fraternity, brought a topsy-turvy Hungarian comedy to the stage of George Washington auditorium the evening of December 6.

Varied references to "riding in a car with a man at night," an escape from confining walls with a rope ladder, failed examinations, unprofessor-like professors, and expulsion from a convent because of innocent adventures furnished double meanings and double laughter particularly to the student audience.

Outstanding in her lively portrayal of the unorthodox Gyurkovics daughter, "Mitzi" was Martha Gene Randall who had the starring role. Pat Nussey as "Katinka," the older daughter who is almost pushed into an unwilling match with the Colonel's nephew, showed herself particularly well-suited to her part. Harwood Bullock as "Colonel Radvany" was excellent in his role of the strutting Hungarian army officer. Pecky Grigg, "Mrs. Gyurkovics," gave a convincing and humorous performance as the harassed mother of seven unmarried girls.

"Professor" Ruff was again a professor in the role of Horkey. The play's humorous possibilities were well brought out by Al Marra as "Gida," the unambitious nephew of "Colonel Radvany." The shy lisper "Toni Telek" was portrayed by William Martin. Jean Sholes is particularly remembered for her furtive cigarette smoking.

The stage set showed careful craftsmanship and gave a natural and homelike atmosphere to the production. Particular commendation is due the lighting crew, especially for the striking moonlight effect as the curtains opened on the last act. Costumes as a whole were expressive of the period and spirit of the comedy, the bright army uniforms being obviously appreciated by the audience.

Nuts To You

Peanut Week starts Wednesday. This week of fun just before Christmas is a delightful tradition at Mary Washington. It begins with the distribution of shells containing the name of your "peanut" on Wednesday and climaxes in the giving of small gifts and the eating of delicious food at the Christmas dinner in the dining hall a week later.

Everyone has a peanut, and everyone has a shell. On Wednesday each person will receive a shell. She will find within that shell the name of her peanut. Throughout the week the shell treats the peanut, doing nice things for her—all without the peanut finding out who her shell is. At the Christmas dinner, all is revealed, and each peanut finds her shell.

Until this year Peanut Week always came during exam week at MWC. Unexpected gifts had an added value then when a coke from your shell was the means whereby you stayed awake to cram for that history exam.

Gifts may be left at the door of a peanut's dormitory room, may be sent by a friend, or left at the table in the dining hall. It's all in fun anyway you do it.

Peanut Week adds to the friendly spirit found on our campus. Through it each student has an outlet for some of that joy she always experiences at Christmas time.

Introducing—

Business Manager

(Ed. Note: In order to acquaint our readers with members of the Bullet staff, there will appear in this column from time to time interviews of staff workers.)

"The only trouble is that too many people rush up to me, toss some money in my general direction and dash off like mad persons with no explanation of how, what or why. Or, worse still, they want money—there's being business manager of THE BULLET would be wonderful." So said Jean Knott who has been just that on the "Bullet" staff ever since February, 1945. But when the facts are considered, she doesn't really mind the money throwing either for Jean is greatly interested in her work. Commerce being her major, the job fits right into her plans for both the present and the future.

The business end of any organization is always important and a college newspaper is no exception. Jean is faced with many problems and hardly any two are alike. Trying to keep an over-enthusiastic editor from spending too much money is only one of her current batch of headaches. Jean secured general journalism experience during the past summer season.

The business-manager, who calls Richmond home, is nineteen years old and expects to graduate this coming June. Last year she played on the Mary Washington hockey team but because of her other interests she will have to confine her sports this year to cheering.

SONNETTE

I love my roommate dearly;
We always get along.
We share each other's soap chips,
And wrestle when we're strong.
But now she has an animal
Of Cyclopean size.
When I come to take the easy chair,
If I don't use my eyes—
I go to sit upon the chair.
And sit upon—the BEAR!

Latest style of informal greeting around campuses these days goes something like this: Two collegians meet and one says, "Hi Fitch!" The other answers, "Hi Wildroot!" And they both begin dusting the dandruff off each other's shoulders.

CAMPUS CANDIDS

'Joan Of Lorraine' Is Well-Acted Play

Ingrid Bergman, first lady of the motion pictures, has also captured the heart of the legitimate theatre-goers, in her poignant portrayal of Joan of Arc in Maxwell Anderson's Joan of Lorraine, currently playing in New York City. Called "Joan of Art" by columnist Walter Winchell, Miss Bergman has received laurels from the whole eastern coast for her splendid acting in Mr. Anderson's opus.

The play and Miss Bergman's role is of especial interest to the campus, since many of us saw the play when it was in Washington, and others of us saw it in New York over Thanksgiving. The review of it by Joan Timberlake, which is Campus Candids feature this week, is a fine interpretation of a magnificent production.

Maxwell Anderson's new play "Joan of Lorraine" is a fine drama that is brilliantly acted by its star, Ingrid Bergman.

Roughly, the play has a modern setting and is a play-within-a-play construction. A group of actors are discussing the staging of Joan of Arc. Mary Gray, the star (Ingrid Bergman) believes that Joan could never have compromised with anything evil while Jimmy Masters, the director (Sam Wanamaker) says that Joan not only could, but did compromise with all sorts of weak and vicious people such as the Dauphin (Romney Brent). In the end the star agrees with the director that some sort of compromise is necessary.

The play begins on a bare stage with no props or costumes. There is a tone of absurd realism when one discovers the mystical voices of Joan are only actors rehearsing and being corrected by the "director" who actually watches the "rehearsal" from out front in the audience.

Gradually the audience becomes accustomed to the changes from the warm and moving story of Joan to the almost clinical discussions by the cast of beliefs and realities until they are eagerly caught up in the mood and a feeling of shock prevades at the end to find oneself back in the theater.

Ingrid Bergman excels in making both Mary Gray and Joan fascinating characters. Her Mary Gray is a sincere actress who believes in her convictions and wants to play her characters as she thinks they should be played. She is a trifle stubborn but warm and charming. Joan is naive, very feminine, bewildered but courageous and determined to do as her voices tell her no matter what the cost. Miss Bergman is a marvelous actress who is completely graceful and natural as well as being much more lovely than she photographs.

Sam Wanamaker, though a comparative newcomer to the stage, gives a fine and sincere performance in the dual role of Jimmy Masters and the Inquisitor. Mr. Wanamaker bears a startling resemblance to John Hodiak and Gov. Dewey, yet manages to project his own personality very successfully.

Romney Brent as the weak, vacillating Dauphin gives a performance that brought ravestorm of the critics. While the Dauphin is very easy to dislike and might simply be dismissed as such, Mr. Brent manages to bring out the humor, lust, greed, and other unattractive qualities of such a person.

Margo Jones has done an excellent job of direction that has resulted in bringing out the best possibilities inherent in the characters and in Maxwell Anderson's lines.

Lee Simonson has done a masterful job on lighting and costuming. Joan's armor and other costumes, and the supposedly half completed costumes of the other characters

SOCIAL NOTES

Anna Brauer became engaged to Thomas H. Oxenham Jr. over the Thanksgiving vacation. A former first lieutenant in the Army who served two years in the Pacific area, Mr. Oxenham is now attending V. P. I.

Dixie Lee Failes, '46, became the bride of William Henry Moore III at 5 p. m. Thanksgiving Day in the Trinity Episcopal Cathedral at Phoenix, Ariz. The Moores are now residing in Beverly Hills, Cal., where Mr. Moore, a graduate of Harvard Law School, conducts his practice.

Mr. and Mrs. William L. McDermott became the parents of their second child, a daughter, on Nov. 14 at the Medical College Hospital in Richmond, Va. The little girl, who weighed 7 lbs., 11 oz. at birth, will be named Emma Jane.

The McDermotts have one other daughter, Lola, aged 3. Mrs. McDermott, who was graduated from M. W. C. in 1942, is the former Emma Jane Davis.

Among the Mary Washingtonites who attended the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia last week-end were Anne Lee, Wickie Whitley, Jane Clatterback and Melanie Norris.

Attending festivities at North Carolina State College over Thanksgiving were Polly White and Betty Bridges.

Nancy Heffernan spent this past week-end visiting in New Brunswick, N. J.

Rita Goodwyn was a guest in Boston, Mass., over Thanksgiving.

Diane Trimborn spent the Thanksgiving vacation visiting at the home of Nan Taylor, in Suffolk, Va.

Professors in the department of history and social science honored Mr. Darter last Monday evening at a dinner at the Princess Anne Hotel in tribute to his 20 years of service at the College. He was presented a leather traveling bag. Hosts to Mr. and Mrs. Darter were Dr. R. L. Hildrup, Dr. Almont Lindsey, Dr. Warren Keith, Dr. R. F. Caverlee, Mrs. Frances Mooney, Dr. Myrick Sublette, Aldo Charles, Mrs. John T. Stewart Jr., and Dr. Rollin H. Tanner.

Also calendars may be purchased from the following girls in their dormitory rooms: Lila Kinsey—Willard 236, Jean Bunting—Virginia 316, Laurie Richardson—Cornell, Martha Warner—Ball 322, June Ashton—Hamlet House, Betty Warren—Westmoreland 320.

"Y" Groups are the Freshman organization of "Y," including off-campus students. The presidents of these groups make up the Freshman Commission which this year consists of the following: Margaret Parker, Pat Murphy, Pat Baum, Frances Fitzpatrick, Shirley Caine, Mary Sue Mock, Diane Trimborn, Joan Brauer, Dot Inskre, Claire Turley, Betty Turner, Agnes Stuart, Jacquelin Curtia, Eleanor McCauley, Ruth Wright, Dorothy Held, Ruth Dennis, Patti Head, Betty Scheff, Juanita Martin, Lillie Powell, Jo Hutton, and Betty Jane Guthrie.

Freshmen! Freshmen! Gather your wits, rags, needles, and thread. Here's the dope and why. Each "Y" Group will present one grand entry of the doll they have been working on in the "Y" Doll Show which is to be December 9, Willard Hall. On December 10, they will be judged for creativeness, skill of construction, and ingenuity by Miss Lillie Turman, Dr. John P. Kirby and Mrs. Earl Insley. The dolls will be left up Wednesday.

Peanuts, Peanuts is our yell! Yes, guys and gals (boys, too!) it's almost time for that hilarious week of gifts and guesses. As usual, peanut week will be the one just before Christmas holidays. According to Alice Wambersie, the date for receiving the peanuts will be at dinner December 11.

Here's our chance to hear sweet music of the "Y" Choir. They will have their Christmas program at Chapel Tuesday, December 10. The title of the program will be "On The Roof Top." We won't tell you all now but you go and find out for yourself.

Attention all "Y" members! The annual recognition service will be held Sunday, December 15 at 7 p. m. Monroe Auditorium.

Dr. Peter Gray Is As Well As Noted

Dr. Peter Gray, acting head of the Department of Biological Sciences of the University of Pittsburgh, will be the guest of the college this week when he will visit classes, take part in discussions with science students, and will give a lecture on "The Nature and Origin of Man" in convocation Thursday evening.

He was born in London and received his education on the continent and at the University of London, where he earned his B. S. and Ph.D. degrees. From 1927 to 1929 he was a zoologist at Norwich Castle Museum, and served as a lecturer in vertebrate embryology at the University of Edinburgh, Scotland, from 1929 to 1937. He was a Rockefeller Foundation Fellow in Research at the University of Rochester from 1937 to 1938, and joined the faculty of the University of Pittsburgh in 1939.

Dr. Gray is also a bookbinder, having studied this craft in Europe. In his younger days as a student in Paris he earned his living as a chef and still regards cooking as one of the fine arts.

suit the atmosphere perfectly but it is in the lighting that Mr. Simonson surpasses the average lighting effects. Without an actor speaking a word, the audience can sense the general mood. In the "Joan" scenes, the lighting is warm and soft while the stage discussion scenes are cold and bright.

The rather abrupt switches from stage discussions to Joan—scenes coupled with a slight tendency toward the "preachy" are the only faults to be found with "Joan of Lorraine." It is truly a memorable experience in theatergoing.

Alumnae Daughters Wear Childish Garb In Fall Initiation

Knee socks and Buster Brown ties were the order of the day for the six Alumnae Daughters Club initiates who became official members of the club on Nov. 16.

The new members, Barbara Guild, Lola Murray, Shirley Sayre, Mary Seward, Jean Sprower, and Joyce Wright were asked to dress as little girls for the initiation period.

Various talents of the six were exhibited in the program which followed. The old classic, "Chopsticks," was played by Miss Wright and Miss Seward in a piano duet. Miss Guild gave a reading entitled "The Walrus and the Carpenter." "I Love You," a poem, was read by Miss Murray and Miss Sprower did two humorous readings.

Freshman Defeats M. Crickenberger In Tennis Match

Peggy Omerly, a freshman, defeated Margaret Crickenberger, a senior, in the finals of the fall tennis tournament by a score of 7-5; 6-4. The match was played Saturday afternoon, November 23 on the school courts before numerous spectators.

The players were evenly matched, with first one winning a game and then the other. However, Peggy Omerly came out on top winning an exciting tennis match. The referees were Bette Cox and Rae Plante, physical Educational majors.

Twelve Campus Teams Compete In Peppy Volleyball Tournament

The volleyball tournament has started with a bang with round robin play-offs and a Devil-Goat game in prospect.

The round-robin play-off is composed of twelve snappy and peppy teams organized in three groups. The winners within each group will play among themselves for the winner of the tournament. The teams winning thus far are the Mountaineers, Campus Champs, Gay Eight, Sparklers, and Faculty Flames.

The Devil-Goat game will be played at 5:15 December 18. A meeting of all the team managers will be held with the A. R. A. chairman of social sports Monday, Dec. 16, to choose the twelve Devils and twelve Goats who will play.

Hockey Title Goes To Devils This Year

The Devils won the first point toward Devil-Goat day by winning two out of three hockey games, thus clinching the hockey title for this year.

The Devils won the first game 6-4. The second game was a tie 2-2, and the Devils took the third one 8-0.

High scorer for the Devils was Betty Phillips with 7 points, for the Goats, Joan Davis with three points.
